Manhattan, St. George and many other communities have created linear parks that connect people from one part of town to another as well as to other recreational venues such as traditional parks and sports fields. I liked how Manhattan built basketball and tennis courts periodically along the Hudson River Park. In St. George, we're trying to fill in some of the "missing links" in our 50 miles of paved trails as well as to better connect them to commercial areas and streets. We want the trail system to serve well for recreation, tourism and active transportation purposes.

St. George is a wonderful place to call home! Everyone at the City is working hard to keep it that way and make it even better in the future. To that point, as I have the opportunity to travel, whether on city or personal business, I observe what other cities do to make their communities great. Most of the time I find that we compare very well.

My wife Kristy and I had the chance to celebrate our 31st anniversary in New York City for a few days. It was the first time I'd been there since I was a teenager, so I was pretty excited to view it in a different way.

For me, the highlight was the opportunity to see three Broadway musicals. I was very impressed with the talented actors, the scenery, the choreography, and of course the music and stories of Beautiful, Dear Evan Hansen and Come From Away.

While our local live theater options aren't Broadway, we still have the opportunity to see incredible productions here in southern Utah. At Tuacahn and our various local community theater organizations we can enjoy from the perspective of the audience, or maybe even take a turn on stage. I feel similarly about all of our other performing and visual arts organizations in and around St. George. We are on a great trajectory when it comes to the arts.

I also love the chance to walk around a city and try to get acquainted with its layout and various venues. Kristy and I enjoyed walking along Manhattan Island's Hudson River Park and also the High Line, which is a former elevated train line converted now into a walking path. We noticed many similarities between these paved walking/biking trails and those in St. George. I wasn't expecting them to be so nice in New York, but they've clearly made efforts to make their streets safer and to reclaim and improve some areas that are now very popular for recreation.

Finally, I enjoyed being able to see the Freedom Tower and the monuments and museum at the World Trade Center location. The events of 9/11 are still very disturbing to me after nearly 18 years, but New York has done an incredible job of recognizing what happened that terrible day — as well as showing the world how to move forward. Being able to go to the top of the Freedom Tower (1,776 feet high) was breathtaking. It was also the closest thing to a mountain we could find to get an incredible view of this huge city. It reminded me of the perspective I often gain when I climb our own local natural "towers" and view our waterfalls, sheer cliffs, gorgeous red, white and black rocks and so many other beautiful scenes.

I loved visiting the Big Apple, and I appreciate all that it has to offer. But it was wonderful to come home to St. George and have the opportunity to interact with each one of you in this beautiful part of the world. ☀

The Washington County Fair began in 1860 and continues more than 150 years later, promoting community involvement and interest. If you have something to contribute in agriculture, horticulture, livestock, household arts, fine arts and diverse traditions, come join us in a family-friendly environment. The Washington County Commissioners and the fair board encourage the public (you) to showcase your accomplishments and participate.

Showcase Your Home and Garden at the Fair!
Stop and picture summer. Picture warm days, cooler nights and carnivals, concerts, food and exhibits of alluring colors and textures.

Reach back in your memory and summon all bakers, gardeners and crafters. It's time to start planning entries into the 2019 Washington County Fair Home & Garden Competition.

The fair will accept entries of home arts, 4-H, photos, crafts, canning, needlework and literary arts beginning Saturday, August 3 from 3pm-6pm and on Monday, August 5 from 8am-8pm Flower, vegetable and baked good entries (perishable items) should be delivered to the Fairgrounds on Wednesday, August 7 from 7 a.m.-11 a.m. All exhibitors will receive one ticket for the prize drawing with an early incentive to all Saturday exhibitors who will receive two tickets.

New Attractions and Events

To combat the summer heat, residents can expect to find several large water slides (free of charge) and canopy tents for shade. Expect a large air-conditioned tent where you can take your turkey leg or snow cone and sit and enjoy a local band. Coming back to the fair is the addition of a junior rodeo held on Friday night. For children under 18, this event will feature events like the goat tail pull, pole bending, goat tying, tie down roping, team roping and others.

Free for spectators; $10 to register, per event. The night prior will feature barrel racing brought to you by Southwest Barrel Racing and Janie Johnson and will be free to watch.

In 2021, St. George will welcome the world to this beautiful city.

On May 2, IRONMAN announced that the City of St. George has been selected to host the 2021 IRONMAN® 70.3® World Championship triathlon. The announcement marks the return of the IRONMAN 70.3 World Championship to North America and is the first time since 2013 that the event has been hosted in the Southwestern United States.

"We promised – and we will deliver,"
said St. George
Mayor Jon Pike
"I can guarantee you that."

In addition, IRONMAN also announced a new five-year host venue agreement that includes the introduction of a new full-distance IRONMAN triathlon that will rotate between a series of cities across North America, beginning with St. George in 2020. The rotation will bring host cities a full-distance IRONMAN triathlon every three years with St. George again hosting the IRONMAN event in 2023. The 2020 and 2023 IRONMAN St. George triathlons will also be designated as the North American Championship.

St. George will continue to put on IRONMAN 70.3 events in the other years, giving athletes the chance to prepare on the same courses and increasing the appeal of the destinations within the triathlon community.

"These events will showcase one of the most iconic and scenic sports backdrops and landscapes that exists anywhere in the world. Congratulations to the Utah Sports Commission, St. George and Washington County on the partnership agreement they have entered into with IRONMAN," said Utah Gov. Gary R. Herbert.

St. George has been a host venue for IRONMAN or IRONMAN 70.3 races since 2010. St. George's breathtaking scenery and views, and strong spirit of volunteerism have made the city an ideal destination for athletes. Historically, the course has started in the beautiful Sand Hollow Reservoir before embarking on a bike course through picturesque Snow Canyon State Park, prior to a run adjacent to the Red Cliffs Desert Reserve. The IRONMAN 70.3 North American Pro Championship St. George also earned accolades in the 2018 IRONMAN Athlete Choice awards, ranking in the Top 10 for two categories: fifth in Best Overall Bike and ninth in Overall Host City Experience.

"This stunningly beautiful Southwestern community has hosted both IRONMAN and IRONMAN 70.3 events for many years and has become a fantastic destination for athletes and spectators alike," said Andrew Messick, President & Chief Executive Officer for IRONMAN. "Beyond the unmistakable red sandstone backdrop, St. George also provides athletes a challenging course perfect to bring about the best competition for the 2021 IRONMAN 70.3 World Championship."

Qualification for the 2021 IRONMAN 70.3 World Championship presented by the Utah Sports Commission will begin in July of 2020 with an estimated 200,000 registered athletes from around the world expected to compete for a coveted slot at the more than 110 events in the global IRONMAN 70.3 Series.

"We are elated that the 2021 IRONMAN 70.3 World
Championship is coming to St. George, Utah,"

Marc Mortensen, Support Services Director for the City of St. George said. "It was an effort by thousands of people in our community to get this event here." 🌞

LIGHT UP NAVAJO

CITY OF ST. GEORGE LINEMEN HELP PROVIDE ELECTRICITY FOR HOUSEHOLDS IN THE NAVAJO NATION

Light Up Navajo was an experience two members of the City of St. George's Energy Services department will never forget.

Line Crew Supervisor Ryan Bowler and Journey Lineworker Allen Davis were among a crew of volunteer electrical workers in the Light Up Navajo project May 11-18, which brought electricity to many households in the Navajo Nation without power.

"It sounded like a good way to put my knowledge and skills to use for a great purpose," said Bowler. "I love the feeling you have when you are in service of a fellow man who truly needs it. We changed lives, not only for the individuals we saw but for generations to come. It is an amazing feeling to be a part of such a novel cause."

The Navajo Nation is the largest Native American territory in the United States, with an estimated population of 300,000. Among the 55,000 homes located on the 27,000 square mile reservation, approximately 15,000 do not have electricity. This number represents about three-quarters of all unelectrified households in the U.S.

"We take for granted the lights coming on when we flip the switch, having a working refrigerator and having a plug to re-charge our cell phone. That has not been the case for many of the households of the Navajo Nation," said Laurie Mangum, Energy Services Director for the City of St. George. "We hope this service is a step toward electrifying all homes throughout the Navajo Nation and the entire USA."

According to the American Public Power Association, "the high cost of connecting isolated rural households to the grid, the sensitivity of families to utility costs, and the limited availability of government loans has made progress toward greater electrification slow. To expedite electrification projects in the Navajo Nation, the American Public Power Association in partnership with the Navajo Tribal Utility Authority has launched the Light Up Navajo initiative."

Light Up Navajo involved volunteer crews from more than 20 public power utilities throughout the country. The various entities donated manpower, equipment and/or materials to help connect more than 100 new customers to the grid within the Navajo Nation.

The public is also invited to participate in the Light Up Navajo initiative. Donations can be made at www.publicpower.org/donate-light-navajo.

In addition to the City of St. George, public power utilities from throughout Utah, Arizona, California, Illinois, Massachusetts, New Mexico, Ohio, Oklahoma and Texas participated in Light Up Navajo. ☀

Mother and Son Honored For Heroic Actions SAVING A DROWNING 3-YEAR-OLD BOY

St. George resident Whitney Bleazard and her son Logan Bleazard took life-saving measures to save a 3-year-old boy from drowning on April 5, 2019, at the pool inside Bloomington Country Club. For their quick thinking and heroic deeds, they were honored by the St. George City Council with an "Award for Heroic Action."

St. George Fire Department Battalion Chief Robert Hooper, the first responder to the scene, shared remarks about the incident and helped present the award along with St. George Mayor Jon Pike and City Council member Michele Randall.

"We were at the right place at the right time,"

Whitney Bleazard said, who is a nurse but was not working during the incident.

Whitney said her adult son was walking near the pool when he noticed a child under water. Logan Bleazard pulled the boy out and yelled to his mom for help. No heartbeat on the child was detected, nor was the child breathing. His face was blue. Quick action was needed.

Whitney began CPR on the child while Logan called 911. She was able to get the boy's heart beating again after about three compressions. The next step was to get him breathing.

"He was wanting to breathe. I kept having to feed oxygen to his lungs because that had been completely depleted," Whitney said. "While you are doing it, it seems like it takes forever."

She said the first responder on scene, Hooper, was the same person who trains her and her co-workers on CPR. This was the first time, however, that Whitney had to initiate CPR in a non-training scenario.

"When we arrived on scene everything that should have been done was done by the Bleazards — because of this the victim survived," said Hooper, who noted the boy was likely under water for 1 or 2 minutes. "This is great example of why we have community training programs including CPR and First Aid, which is to prepare people to take action before EMS arrives. You can nearly triple a victim's chance of survival by simply starting CPR on them."

After her adrenaline waned, Whitney wondered about the boy's fate. Two days later she was ecstatic to be visited by the boy and his parents.

"These types of cases don't always end so well," said Randall as she addressed Whitney and Logan Bleazard. "I'm sure those parents are more than grateful that you were there at that time to save their child."

Airport to Reopen Sept. 26 with New Direct Service to Texas

By David Cordero

When the St. George Regional Airport (SGU) reopens Sept. 26 following the four-month runway improvement project, it will feature direct service to a destination deep in the heart of Texas.

American Airlines will offer once-daily, roundtrip service between Dallas/Fort Worth International Airport (DFW) and SGU through SkyWest Airlines beginning Sept. 26, as approved by the St. George City Council during its May 2 meeting at City Hall.

The addition of DFW means SkyWest will provide air service on three major airline brands to five major hubs that literally connects our community to the world. Tickets are available at www.aa.com.

SGU set a site record with 277,520 passengers going through its gates in 2018. It represented growth of nearly 40,000 passengers from 2017 and 93,000 more than in 2016. ☀

Historic St. George Live Set to Begin 24th Year of Entertaining & Educating

By David Cordero

Residents and visitors to St. George can see history come alive through actors in period dress at Historic St. George Live!, through Aug. 31. Guests will encounter the pioneer settlers in historic buildings around town Tuesdays through Saturdays at 10 a.m. starting at the Pioneer Center for the Arts (47 East 200 North).

Visitors are taken back to 1870 with historic facts and artifacts such as a replicated odometer which pioneers used to count the miles on the wheels of their wagons. Stops at the St. George Tabernacle, Pioneer Opera House, the Brigham Young Winter Home and the Daughters of Utah Pioneers Museum are included in the tour. Buses are provided.

Tickets can be purchased at the St. George Art Museum prior to the 10 a.m. tours. The cost is $3 for anyone 12 and older. Children 11 and under are free with paying adult. Each ticket is also good for one admission to the St. George Art Museum. ☀

CEC-TV is Going HD on TDS Telecom

By Kathryn Shiverdecker

The Community Education Channel (CEC) is now being broadcast in High Definition (HD). Viewers can enjoy the benefits of a clearer image while staying up-to-date on City of St. George happenings and other community events with the Limited Basic Cable Package subscription to TDS Telecom.

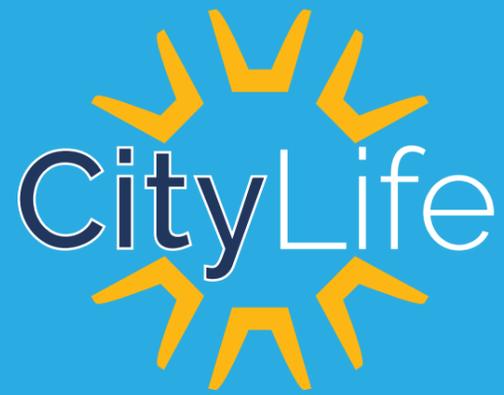

TDS customers can find the CEC on Channel 108 under the "Education Access" title. The CEC streams everything from coverage of local events, to college and high school sports, to city council meetings for Washington County communities.

"CEC-TV does a fantastic job covering our city, from filming our City Council meetings to fun community celebrations and educational pieces," said St. George Mayor Jon Pike. "We welcome the fact that viewers can now watch this brand of storytelling in a clearer format."

The CEC has taken measures to be more than a means for viewers to stay up-to-date on local news and events by offering hands-on learning opportunities to students at Dixie State University (DSU). The CEC has partnered with DSU to offer school credit to students interested in producing quality television and live-streaming community content.

To learn more about how to become a viewer of the CEC visit www.hellotds.com or www.cectvutah.com. ☀

ROBERT SHEPHERD A LEGEND REMEMBERED

Desert Landscape
Watercolor
by: Robert Shepherd

One of St. George area's most prominent and revered artists, the late Robert Shepherd, will be remembered through an exhibit at the St. George Art Museum July 20 through October 19, 2019. The retrospective exhibit will feature landscape paintings in watercolor and other mediums as well as drawings and sketches from his early years as a draftsman and muralist.

"We have gathered some of Robert Shepherd's best paintings from private and public collections for this exhibit," said Museum Curator, Deborah Reeder. "We are also fortunate to have drawings and sketches on display that show his creation process."

The show opens with a free day to the public at the St. George Art Museum on July 20 from 10 to 5pm. SGAM is open Monday-Saturday from 10-5pm. Roland Lee will present a free Art Conversation on Robert Shepherd on August 15 at 7pm. The exhibit will close on October 22.

Robert Shepherd arrived on the southern Utah scene in the early 1970s and immediately made an impact on the area art world that is still growing today. With a resume that included working with Arnold Friberg and Cecil B. Demille on the epic "The Ten Commandments" film to painting huge murals for several LDS temples, he was easily the most revered area artist at the time.

"Robert was a huge art presence in our community," said artist Roland Lee.

"When others his age were retiring, he was just getting started. His kindly mannerisms and gentle encouragement helped bring area artists together in a common cause that resulted in the strong art community we have today."

From his youth Shepherd wanted to be an artist but was discouraged by his parents and instead pursued architecture in college. He coupled that training with his ability to draw, becoming a skilled architectural draftsman and renderer. That in turn led to assignments painting murals for five LDS temples as well as chapels and public buildings in California. One of his big murals from the Logan Temple baptistry along with several of his sketches and drawings for those murals will be on display during the exhibit.

It was while painting the Los Angeles Temple mural that the famed artist Arnold Friberg coaxed Shepherd into helping design sets and costumes for the filming of "The Ten Commandments." When the costume department could not work fast enough, Shepherd began fabricating Egyptian belts, arm bands, and headbands himself. This led to a long career in the decorating business.

Retiring to Santa Clara in 1971, Robert and his wife Olive designed and built a home lovingly called "Casa Roberto" which was surrounded by carefully designed desert gardens. He spent four hours a day gardening, and spearheaded creation of a 26-acre desert arboretum in Santa Clara.

His gifts to the community included: Helping organize the Southwestern Utah Arts Council, serving as president; Helping acquire and save the Dixie Academy building and restore it as an arts center; Serving as president of the Southwest Series concert programs; Designing the city park gazebo; and Painting two local chapel murals. Shepherd left a great legacy, giving his heart and soul to the community. Countless artists can thank him for his encouragement, and hundreds of his paintings grace the walls of local homes and businesses. This exhibit honors the man and his life's work. ☀

Raven by: Carol Bold

Everett Ruess & the Vixen
by: Abraham McCowan

Woodcut by: Royden Card

IN THE SPIRIT OF EVERETT RUESS

WITH PRINTMAKERS: ROYDEN CARD, CAROL BOLD,
ABRAHAM MCCOWAN, ROBERT PERKINS

Four friends came together to create this Exhibit. All are artists for which printmaking is only one of their creative outlets. We chose to explore the most basic methods of producing prints, making one color, woodcut or linocut prints.

To create the prints, blocks of wood or linoleum are carved - the carved areas become the white parts of the print - the remaining surface is inked with a roller and appears black when paper laid over the inked block, is pressed to it.

Bringing visual ideas "ALIVE" using only black and white lines, shapes, and textures compels the artist to refine their designs into simple, elegant statements - Transforming the grandeur of nature into "Zen" like clarity. Some of the artists have expanded the "one color" limitation as they created prints during the past year, resulting in a few more "enriched" complex prints.

The four of us first envisioned this exhibit as a "nod" or "salute" to Everett Ruess. He was a painter, poet, printmaker and wanderer who's one color linoleum prints made up the bulk of his visual artwork. He was only twenty years old when he wandered into the desert outside Escalante, Utah and was never seen again. In his four years of wandering and art making, he left behind a trove of eloquent letters, transcendent poems, wonderful drawings, paintings and many linoleum prints of the scenes he encountered. Hence, our basic, one color prints are in a similar creative endeavor, to capture and share beauty. These artworks use the most basic mode of printmaking to transpose what we have felt and seen in the presence of nature into "singular visual statements" to share that Beauty which is received through the eye and felt in the soul. ☀

LANDSCAPES WITHOUT RESTRICTIONS

FROM ST. GEORGE ART MUSEUM'S
PERMANENT COLLECTION

St. George Art Museum's Permanent Collection features many landscapes. Of these, there are several that are not typically naturalistic but rather expand the stylistic barriers of the landscape genre.

A recent gift by the Ackerman's, depicting Zion National Park by Barbara Gurwitz, is one of these. Zion Cliffs, an oil on canvas, features roiling lines of rich color shaping the flowing clouds and the land.

Other media will be part of this expansive show, including glass and ceramics. ☀
