Mayor's Column

Thank you St George residents for letting me serve as your Mayor for the last several years. It has been an honor and privilege that few receive in their lifetime. There are only three mayors of St George City who are still alive today. I would like to share some of my thoughts about the other two who have served as Mayor and how they have helped me to continue in their efforts to shape this city into the great place it has become.

First was James Grey Larkin who is presently serving as a councilor in the St George Temple Presidency who gave me the opportunity to serve with some of the youth in the area. He owned L&L Mechanical and employed many of the businessmen who now serve the area in the heating and air-conditioning industry as well as in other trades. With his good business sense, integrity, and can do attitude, the city was set in a good financial position to start to grow. It was during his time in office that the city changed its address from the small building on north Bluff, to a new more spacious building at 175 East 200 North in the down town area setting the example for other businesses to follow. When he left office, he was appointed as a Commissioner for the Utah Department of Transportation by the Governor where he served for many years helping all of rural Utah and especially Washington County to receive the needed help in improving our infrastructure. James Grey Larkin has influenced me in more ways than I can explain in this short message. I owe him a great deal of appreciation for being such a great example.

Karl Brooks succeeded Mayor Larkin and continued to better the city. It was during his twelve years in office that the city really started to grow. Karl's knowledge and love for history inspired the decision making process to begin perceiving and protecting the historic buildings. He led the way in acquiring the property from U&I Sugar Co. and restoring the Opera House as a community gathering place. Mayor Brooks and our City Manager Gary Esplin made trips to the financial rating agencies to insure we had a rating that would make it more feasible to expand and improve St. George. He led the campaign to get a convention center on the Dixie College campus, known as the Dixie Center, which has since been moved to its present location and is managed jointly by the City and County. He helped put in place the methods to protect and preserve historic properties. He often would ask the question, "What do we want to look like when we grow up?" Karl is well known and loved by Dixie residents and throughout the state and beyond; his story telling ability has endeared him to us all and through his efforts we have become a destination instead of a resting place before proceeding on to other destinations.

These two Mayors have had a tremendous impact on making St George what it is today. All of the previous leaders, whether mayors or city councils, have generously and freely given of their time and talents to make St. George a great place to live and raise a family. I can only just scratch the surface of the influence they have had on me. Please join with me in telling them THANK YOU for a job well done. This poem I recite often expresses my feelings for all those that have served and are now serving so well:

IT ISN'T ENOUGH - Author Unknown

It isn't enough to say in our hearts we like a man for his ways
 It isn't enough to fill our minds with pains of silent praise
 Nor is it enough to honor a man as our confidence upwards mounts
 It's going right up to that person himself and telling him so that counts.

If a person does a job that you really admire, don't leave a kind word unsaid
 That to do so might make them vain or cause them to lose their head
 But reach out your hand and tell them well done and see how their gratitude swells
 It isn't the flowers we strew on the grave, it's the word to the living that tells.

Study to Assess Need for Expansion to I-15

inside stuff

The Interstate 15 (I-15) corridor provides an essential transportation and economic link for Washington County, the State of Utah, and the Western United States. In addition to serving as the main route for north-south travel in Utah, as well as providing access to several state routes, I-15 provides cross-town access for the cities of St. George and Washington. The interstate also provides access to the new St. George Replacement Airport via the Southern Parkway.

In conjunction with these critical functions, the U.S. Department of Transportation has named I-15 one of the six "Corridors of the Future" within the United States that are vital to the long-term health and stability of our nation's economy.

By 2040, I-15 between mileposts (MP) 0 to 16 in Washington County will lack sufficient capacity for projected travel demand within this 16-mile stretch of interstate. The increasing congestion will be the result of:

- Projected population growth
- Projected traffic volume growth
- Projected high volumes of freight traffic

As such, the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) and the Utah Department of Transportation (UDOT) have initiated an Environmental Assessment (EA) to analyze the need for transportation improvements to I-15 in this area. The EA will identify current and future transportation needs within the project area and evaluate alternatives with their associated impacts to the environment. Potential roadway upgrades and expansions would offer benefits to St. George, Washington, Hurricane and other surrounding communities. The key environmental resources associated with this project may include the following:

- Threatened and endangered species
- Noise
- Archaeology
- Drainage
- Floodplains

The project team will study these items in detail to determine where potential conflicts might exist in conjunction with proposed improvements to this segment of I-15.

Why Does the Government Require Environmental Assessments?

The National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) requires federal agencies to consider environmental issues before making any major decisions on projects that have federal involvement. An EA helps FHWA and UDOT determine whether a project would have significant impacts on the environment. If there are no significant impacts, a Finding of No Significant Impact (FONSI) report is issued and the project can move forward to design and construction. If, however, the project would have significant impacts, an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) must be prepared. An EA details the purpose and need; discusses alternatives (including a 'no-action alternative'); and presents any social, economic and environmental impacts for a given project.

What is the Intended Outcome of the Project?

An EA will be developed to identify transportation needs on I-15 between MP 0 and 16, discuss alternatives, and evaluate any social, economic, and environmental impacts.

What is the Anticipated Schedule?

The I-15 South EA was initiated in January 2010, and is expected to be completed within 18 months.

Dixie Drive Interchange Underway

Construction of the new Dixie Drive Interchange is now underway. St. George's newest interchange will be built over I-15 approximately one-half mile south of the Bluff Street Interchange. The new interchange and associated improvements are designed to relieve traffic congestion, improve safety conditions and increase east-west mobility for southern and western portions of the city. The new connection will also provide more direct access to existing commercial properties and the Dixie Convention Center.

The Dixie Drive Interchange is designed to work in tandem with the Bluff Street Interchange reducing vehicle back-up onto the interstate and alleviating pressure on the Bluff Street corridor. The completion of both interchanges and associated collector/distributor lanes will fulfill a long-term plan to keep up with projected traffic demand in the area for 25 years.

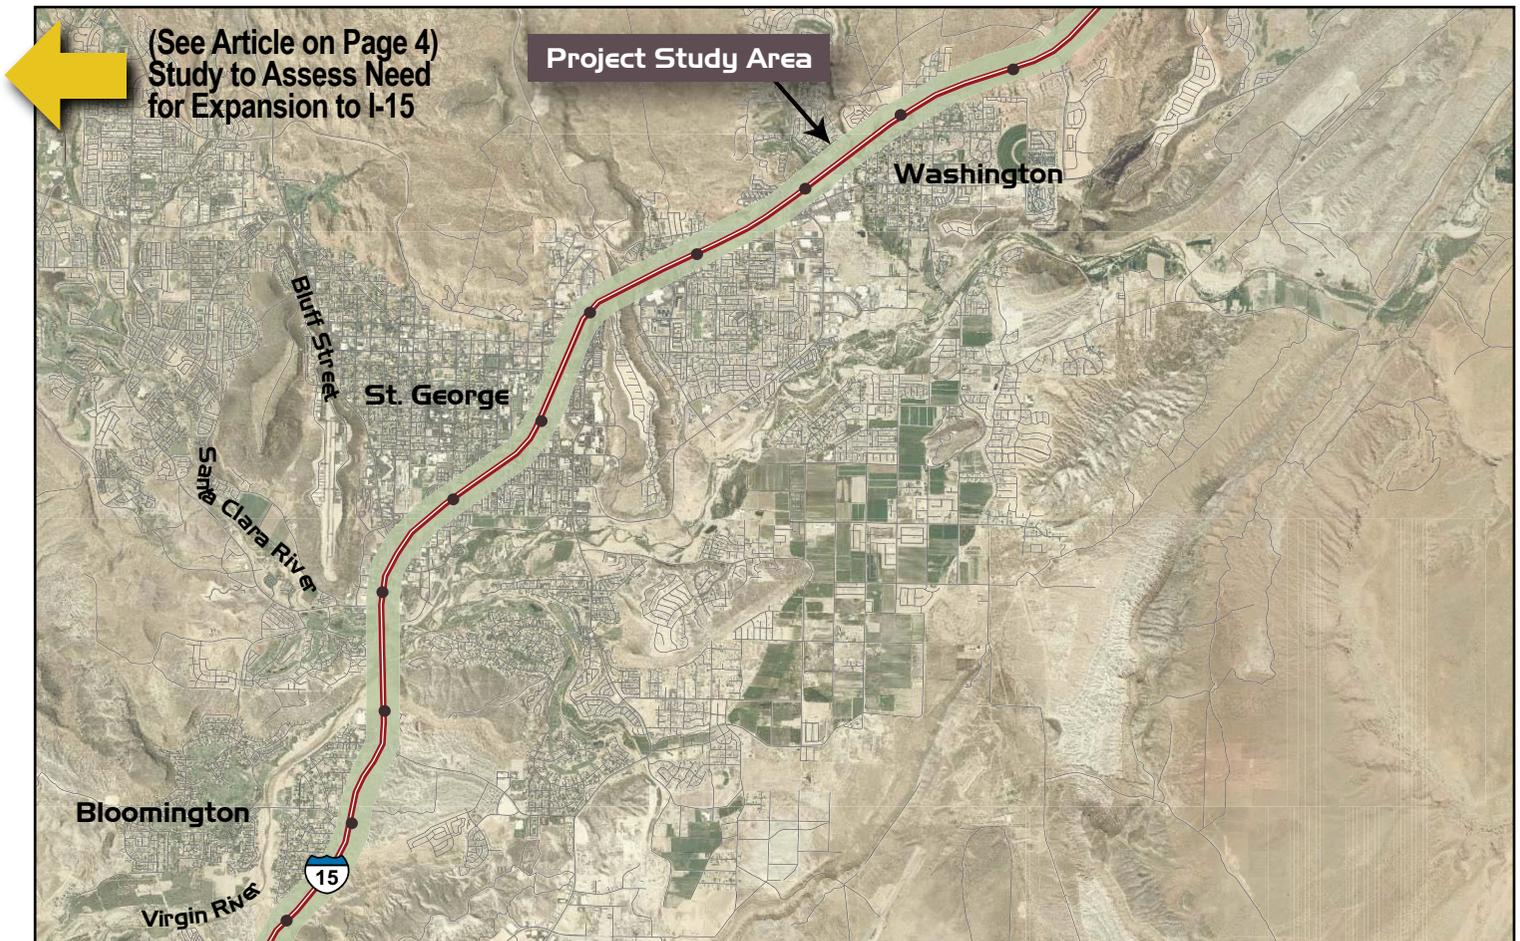

UDOT selected the "Construction Manager/General Contractor" (CMGC) contracting method to deliver the project. The CMGC process allows the General Contractor, Washington County Constructors, to work alongside designers identifying potential construction efficiencies as the plans are rolled out. This method also allows construction to begin on initial project segments while later segments are still on the design table.

Construction is also underway at the Southgate Golf Club on four new holes to replace greens which will be altered by the new alignment of Dixie Drive. The course's front nine holes will close this summer and early fall to facilitate interchange construction but the back nine, the driving range and the practice areas remain open. The entire course is expected to open in October 2010.

Recreation enthusiasts will notice some minor closures at the Confluence Trailhead but the Virgin River Trail, Santa Clara Trail and Web Hill Trail will remain open for the duration of the project.

The interchange should be finished by January 2012. Residents who travel in this area can expect traffic restrictions, minor utility disruptions, and temporary impacts from noise, dust, vibrations and other conditions associated with new construction.

The public is encouraged to sign-up for e-mail updates at www.udot.utah.gov/i15dixie or call 1-888-i15-dixie (1-888-415-3494) to request updates by mail or to comment on the project.

Determining Bluff Street's Future

By: Kevin Kitchen, UDOT

BLUFF ST.

An environmental study of Bluff Street (S.R. 18) begun in February is targeted for completion early next year. The Utah Department of Transportation (UDOT) study is considering future improvements to Bluff Street between St. George Boulevard and Red Hills Parkway, a distance of 1.7 miles. UDOT will sponsor a public open house about the project July 7, 2010 from 3 to 7 p.m. at the St. George City Council Chambers. A 2007 study encompassing the entire Bluff Street corridor recommended further consideration of the roadway to meet future traffic volumes. UDOT Project Manager Clayton Wilson says his team is giving special attention to the intersections at Sunset Boulevard and St. George Boulevard where traffic movements are heaviest. The study will address three key areas including:

- Improving traffic flow to meet projected needs through the year 2035.
- Reducing conflicts with side streets and evaluating business access.
- Optimizing safety for all users of Bluff Street.

Travel demand models indicate traffic on the corridor will grow from 43,700 vehicles per day in 2010 to 65,000 vehicles per day by the year 2035. This coincides with projected population growth expected to more than double in the same time period. The study team also looked at the crash history on Bluff Street. From 2006 to 2008, there was an average of 104 crashes per year between St. George Boulevard and Sunset Boulevard. The most common crash type was front-to-rear. Both the number of crashes and the type of crashes are typical for congested, urban conditions. The study has been aided by involvement from business owners and residents serving on the project's business and stakeholder working groups.

"The working groups give us direct feedback during the study that is invaluable. We have business owners and residents with a serious stake in our decision sitting across the table as we consider what options are best for the community. That level of involvement with the community will help us build a better project," said Wilson.

The City of St. George, the St. George Chamber of Commerce and the Dixie Metropolitan Planning Organization have representatives on the working groups as well.

"We understand that this project is important to St. George and they need to be involved in the decision-making process," added Wilson.

A survey, distributed to businesses along Bluff Street and available on the project website (www.udot.utah.gov/bluffstreetstudy), received more than 100 responses. Sixty percent of the respondents said they traveled the Bluff Street corridor five times per week or more and business access was rated as the top concern. Parking after construction was a popular theme in the comment section.

Jon Pike's Inside Look at the City

I'm now half way through my 3rd year as a member of the St. George City Council. I want to say how much I have learned so far, and how much I appreciate the opportunity to serve and represent you. I honestly try to research every issue, respond to phone calls and email messages, and meet with as many people as I can in an effort to learn about and deal with the various issues that come up in the city. I genuinely enjoy the chance to talk with so many people and try to help. We can't always give people the answer or result they may hope to get, but I will always try to respond and give it my best effort. I enjoy working with every council member, Mayor Dan McArthur, City Manager Gary Esplin, the city employees and department managers. Even in these more difficult times economically, we've all been able to work harder, make tough budget cuts, and think outside of the box to perform city services at the same or improved levels. The city budget is tight, and yet we are solid financially because of the prudence of the Mayor, City Manager and City Councils of the past. The council members take this part of our jobs very seriously, and I know each one of us has reviewed every page and every line item of the next fiscal year's budget in an effort to understand fully what our challenges and priorities are. I am proud that we have a balanced budget! In fact, we must! It is unfortunate that this isn't accomplished at the federal level. It is a fact that we live in the best-managed state in the country. I would suggest that we also live in the best-managed city in the country! This doesn't mean we are perfect, but I can tell you that we are trying very hard, and will continue to make improvements as you help us by pointing out issues – and hopefully solutions!

Shifting gears a bit, we've also made efforts as a council and city staff to work on updating or making changes to some of our city ordinances. More will be coming in the future. In some cases, ordinances have been liberalized, such as with the ability to raise chickens and rabbits in residential areas with lot sizes of 10,000 square feet or more. We've also recently made changes to our temporary sign and banner section of the sign ordinance as a result of input from the business community that came up in the last election process. Some ordinances are created or modified to add restrictions, such as the new ordinance we passed two years ago requiring that the city only purchase or issue contracts with employers who hire legal workers/residents of the United States. This, in addition to other modifications to our business license, has sent an important message that we intend to support and comply with US immigration law and hire and contract only with those eligible to work in the USA.

Another example was a recent modification to the residential landscape ordinance where the council made it a requirement to have some basic landscaping in all front yards. Not all agreed with this action (including me), but please know that all these things aren't done lightly. I personally have a philosophy to try to leave as much freedom as possible with citizens and property owners when it comes to their homes, yards, etc., but there is a balance to be achieved. Because we choose to live in a city, where we have many great advantages, conveniences, and services, we also agree to comply with zoning and other ordinances that seek to provide a balance of property rights and safety and that ensure that we all have a beneficial place in which to live. I hope as the City grapples with tough decisions in these kinds of areas that we can all be courteous and thoughtful as we provide input, and that we will all choose to live in harmony with the outcomes. Sometimes the council may miss something or even get it wrong. But the good news is, we can keep working, refining, and if necessary modifying as we work together to continue to improve the quality of life in St. George. This is a cooperative and ongoing effort.

Finally, in this season where we remember and honor the pioneers of our state, I want to thank them. I appreciate everyone who came before me – whether it be my great, great, great grandparents William and Elizabeth Swapp, or my great, great grandparents Nathan and Mary Adams, who came to settle Santa Clara, St. George and Kanab in the 1800s. And we all owe a debt of gratitude to previous mayors, city council members, county commissioners, judges, public safety officers, farmers, educators and others who've always had a vision of what St. George and Dixie could become! Several years ago the city opened the new Town Square. What an amazing gathering place it has become! After more than fifteen years of developing biking/walking trails and parks, what an incredible resource for fun and exercise we now have! We have better streets and landscapes – adorned with fantastic sculptures in the downtown area thanks to "Art Around the Corner". We utilize our water and energy in more environmentally friendly ways. And in January of next year, we will open a new airport – pioneering the way into commercial jet service and more connections to cities near and far. These things have all come through the vision and hard work of previous councils, our current Mayor and City Manager, and private citizens. I applaud them and honor them as living, modern-day pioneers. Let's all join in the Dixie Spirit and contribute in any way that our time and talents allow to continue the work of all great pioneers. The job is never finished, but the process can be enjoyable and rewarding both now and for generations to come!

The City of St. George Park Planning and Parks Divisions are in the process of installing shade structures over existing playgrounds at two of the city's most popular parks. These parks are Cottonwood Cove Park, located at 1027 S. Dixie Drive, and The Fields at Little Valley, located at 2995 S. 2350 East. Similar shade structures have been installed over playgrounds in other St. George City parks.

These shade structures not only provide an artistic flare, but also provide needed shade during the hot summer months keeping the play equipment and users cool. The shade fabric also protects the users from the sun's harmful ultraviolet rays. The design of the shade structures makes them very durable and they can withstand 90 mph winds. There is a 20-year warranty on the columns and a 10-year warranty on the shade fabric, ensuring that the shade structures will last a long time. The shade structures were purchased from Wicked Shade and installation is being completed by the Parks Division's Technical Crew. Installation is expected to be complete by June 30.

Historic St. George LIVE!

Visitors to St. George and residents will meet Brigham Young, Erastus Snow, Orson Pratt, Jacob Hamblin and Judge John Menzies Macfarlane this summer as part of the Historic St. George LIVE! tours. Beginning June 1 and ending August 31, 2010, guests will meet the five pioneer settlers in historic buildings around town. Five days a week, Tuesdays through Saturdays, at 9 and 10:30 a.m., the tours will begin at the Art Museum at the Pioneer Center for the Arts, 125 East 200 North, across the street from the St. George Post Office. A tour will not be held on July 24.

The first person re-enactment is in its fifteenth year of entertaining and informing guests about early St. George history. In period costumes, the actors, tour guides, bus drivers and day captains take visitors back to 1870 with historic facts and artifacts such as a replicate odometer which pioneers used to count the miles on the wheels of their wagons. At the Pioneer Courthouse, visitors will witness a trial for someone misusing a water turn, showing the importance of irrigation. The St. George Tabernacle, Pioneer Opera House and Brigham Young's Winter Home are all included on the tour. Buses are provided.

Tickets can be purchased at the St. George Art Museum. They are $3 for ages 12 and up, children under 12 are free with an adult. The ticket admits one person to the Dinosaur Museum free on the same day as the historic tour. For more information contact Angie at 435.634.5942 ext. 112 or Sally Thornley, 435.673.5818. Group tours are available for family reunions, churches, youth and Scout troops, class reunions, neighborhoods, businesses, bus tours and others wishing to enjoy the pioneer spirit during the summer. Newcomers and oldtimers will enjoy stepping back in time for 90 minutes in 2010.

Art Museum Exhibits

From Penstemons To Pines

In July, when St. George is a desert on fire, we are able to take a visual trip to the cool Rocky Mountains to view wildflowers in exquisite detail. This exhibit, organized through Denver Botanic Gardens' Botanical Art and Illustration Program, From Penstemons to Pines: Illustrating Rocky Mountain Natives offers a world-class illustration exhibition. This show was juried by a panel of experts. Lesley Elkan is a Botanical Illustrator at the Royal Botanic Gardens Trust in Sydney, Australia. Susan Spackman Panjabi is a Senior Research Associate at Colorado State University. Ann Swan is a member of the Society of Botanical Artists in London, England, and Stephanie Schrader is the Associate Curator of Drawings at the Getty Museum in Los Angeles, California.

The biodiversity of the Rocky Mountain region is remarkable, ranging from alpine tundra to open grassland. In addition to celebrating the beauty and variety of plant life, this exhibit asks viewers to consider pressures that affect the health of plant populations, from drought to invasive species. Botanical illustration is a tool in these ongoing efforts, contributing to a bank of knowledge about plant distribution, the robustness of a population, and adaptations over time. The show consists of thirty-two works on paper in graphite; pen and ink; colored pencil; and watercolor. Each illustration features a label with both common and Latin names, as well as brief information about the plant itself. Additionally there is an 80-page full-color catalog that includes plates of each artwork as well as sections on the history of botanical illustration, how-to techniques for different media, and an introduction by Dan Johnson, Curator of Native Plants at Denver Botanic Gardens.

Summoning the Spirit of the Southwestern Lands

In the Mezzanine Gallery, we tour the Southwest through the lens of Willie Holdman whose large, stunning photographs have graced the moving walkway in the Salt Lake City airport terminal for a number of years.

Holdman writes, "Photographers are visual artists. While a camera, like a pencil or painter's brush, can be usefully employed as a documentary tool, photography in itself is not a science. Like a drawing or painting it is a medium of visual expression. The question for visual artists is how clearly we can express our personal vision. The camera has long passed the days when it was considered only a documentary device. It is now more than ever a tool for the artist to express himself. My wish is that I am able to express myself through the use of a camera."

At this time it is my desire to do portraits of the Earth, to capture the Earth's personality and true character. To experience these phenomena of nature, we must be attentive to the subject. Just as people only reveal themselves on special occasions for people they know and trust, so too, does the Earth save herself for those who respect her and are willing to make the sacrifice and journey off the beaten path. These revealings don't last long; one must be ready and skillful to capture these moments. The result is a photograph that captures the essence of the Earth that has rarely been seen before.

Unlike a painting, these photographs are of real subjects and real places that do actually exist. No manipulations or color enhancer filters were used. I hope these photographs will help you gain a better appreciation for nature and help you learn more about this planet called Earth."

A native Utahn, Holdman started experiencing the wonders of nature at an early age by assisting his father, Floyd, on photography assignments for National Geographic throughout the country. He managed to slip out and photograph the rural areas of Utah while at Brigham Young University where he received his BFA degree with an emphasis in photography. Although he has photographed nature all over the world, it cannot compare with the versatility and beauty of his home state, Utah. Whether it is high in an alpine meadow, or low in the red rock desert, this is home; specifically he resides at the base of majestic Mt. Timpanogos in Midway, Utah.

His work has been used in numerous publications throughout the country and is included in many corporate and personal collections; some of which include Robert Redford, Senator Orin Hatch, 2002 Utah Winter Olympics, Utah Travel Council, SLC International Airport, and Outdoor Photographer. Recently he published a book titled Timpanogos that is a compilation of photographs taken over 15 years on the mountain. Some of his other products are a calendar on Utah, posters, and screen savers for computers.

Forgotten Places

What is it about deserted places that attract us? Sam Scholes and Ben Kuhns set out to photograph and capture things made by and subsequently abandoned by humans. It causes us to think about what we put in the trash and what we leave behind. Their work is combined in the Legacy Gallery. Scholes is the grandson of the beloved painter, Gaell Lindstrom, who died in August 2009. It seems obvious that his degree just obtained from the Utah Valley University is in Anthropology. He is an award winning, published, and exhibited photographer.

Sam Scholes has been making photographs since he was a child. His dad would load an old 35mm camera with film and only moments later Sam would return having taken an entire roll of nothing but cloud formations. Despite his initial propensity towards cloud photography, Sam's father continued to encourage him as well pay for his many rolls of film. Through high school and college Sam's interest in photography continued to grow. "Photography commands my interest because I am fascinated by the visual world. We live in such an incredibly rich and visually interesting world. I feel that photography makes me a more thoughtful observer—seeing things I might otherwise miss. With photography I hope to capture some of that visual richness and share it with other people." Scholes specializes in urban decay, scenic landscapes, travel/lifestyle, and portrait photography. He enjoys traveling, making pottery, listening to all kinds of music, and of course he loves taking photographs. Sam traveled to Peru this past summer as part of an ongoing archaeological project.

Ben Kuhns is Nebraska born, Utah raised, and West Coast loving and spends his days dedicated to one thing: improving his craft as an image maker. His creative inclinations go back almost as far as he does, starting with a pencil and paper and culminating in the photography he does now, which has been both exhibited and award winning. Photography started for Ben as a way to study the abandoned and forgotten architecture of the world, which accomplishes two of his goals: travel and photography. On cold Utah Sundays you'll still find him out getting dirty in the old buildings he loves. As not to be labeled a one trick pony, you will also find healthy doses of portraits, landscapes, and lighting experiments in his body of work.

You are welcome to come and experience these three exploratory exhibits, and to enjoy our Family and Adult Discovery Centers, always available for activities and learning more about the exhibited art on view in the Museum. The Gift Shop is a wonderful place to peruse and purchase cultural and fun items for you or gifts for friends and family.

SMITHSONIAN MUSEUM DAY: On September 25, 2010, the St. George Art Museum will join with over 1,200 other museums across the country in a national celebration of culture and learning, called Smithsonian Magazine Museum Day. Museum Day, the 6th Annual, is a nationwide event where participating museums and cultural institutions offer free admission to anyone presenting a Museum Day Ticket, which is available through the Smithsonian and subscribers.

Community Education

Community Education reflects the importance of strong partnership among homes, schools and communities. It is concerned with the delivery of recreational, social, cultural, vocational, academic and human services. Along with these programs, it features a process of mobilizing human resources, recognizing community needs and using public facilities and making a difference in the lives of the community members. Community Education offers a wide variety of classes for all ages. Check out our upcoming classes featured in our spring brochure coming out in December. The unique classes we offer include the following Fencing, Youtube ETC., Native Flute, Green Fair, Gardening, and Tai Chi.
